
Urban Agriculture Provides a Solution

Posted by West End Gardener - 2008/12/05 06:57

Neighbor and fellow gardener Kim Bogard found this easy to read article about Urban Agriculture that explains how growing our own food in and near our cities can offer solutions to many urban problems ranging from vacant and blighted lots to an insecure food supply in these times of economic crisis. For those who are searching for something positive to do, instead of just reacting to crisis or complaining about our victimization, urban agriculture offers much hope.

Thanks, Kim, for sharing this great link:

<http://wordout.computergeekservices.net/2008/12/04/urban-agriculture/>

=====